Quick reference guide

SFM Work Injury Hotline

When someone’s injured at work...

- If it’s an emergency, call 911.
- Otherwise, the employee and supervisor should call (855) 675-3501 together. (If no supervisor is available, the employee can call alone.) Do this as soon as possible after you learn of an injury.

- The registered nurse who answers will ask what happened and recommend what to do next, whether it’s self-care, urgent care or even the emergency room.
- The nurse will report the injury to SFM, your workers’ compensation insurer. You don’t need to fill out a first report of injury.

Before: Be prepared
To help the claims management process go more smoothly:
- Make sure all supervisors and employees know how and when to call the SFM Work Injury Hotline.
- Make a list of potential transitional and light-duty jobs.
- Use CompOnline®, SFM’s risk management system to track claims.
- Get to know a high-quality medical provider in your area so you have somewhere you can refer injured employees.
- Prevent injuries by using SFM’s many workplace safety resources, available in the resource catalog at sfmic.com.

After: What’s next?
- If a doctor’s visit is required, the employee should take along a report of work ability to be completed by the physician.
- The employer should gather additional information about the incident.
- If recovery will require time off work, the employer should report this to SFM. Call (800) 937-1181 to reach your claims representative.
- Stay in contact with injured employees. Let them know they’re missed, and you’ll have jobs for them when they’re ready to return to work.
- Ask injured workers to call their claims representatives before undergoing diagnostic tests (such as MRIs) or ordering medical equipment, like crutches.
